PREFACE

The census data in this publication was transcribed from microfilm. As any census researcher knows, there are always obstacles to deal with when reading census microfilm: the quality of the film, the correctness of the information given to the census enumerator, the accuracy of the enumerator, and the legibility of the enumerator's handwriting.

Names were often written as they sounded, and spelling was not confirmed. And even with the best handwriting there are still words or letters within words that are illegible. Letters that were especially difficult to distinguish between were F and T; C and O; M, N, and W. For this reason, researchers should check variant spellings of names, including first letter variant spellings. For example, the family name of FULLER may be listed as TULLER. Square brackets [] indicate illegible words or letters.

The original census contains obvious errors. No attempt has been made to correct nor any speculation made as to the intent of the enumerator.

Enumeration Districts

Larimer County was divided into three districts. Areas are included in each district as transcribers have determined. Researchers should not be limited to the strict interpretation of the area designation but use it as a guide.

District one is primarily the southern area of the County.

District two is a large area to the west and north of Fort Collins.

District three includes the city of Fort Collins and the surrounding communities.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This project would not have been possible without the use of the facilities and equipment at the Family History Center of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Fort Collins, Colorado, members of the Larimer County Genealogical Society, volunteers from the LDS Family History Center staff and community volunteers. These volunteers logged many hours reading microfilm, transferring data to the computer and proofing the final product. Our sincere thanks to all volunteers.

INTRODUCTION

Larimer County was created by an act of the first Territorial Legislature of Colorado, approved November 1, 1861. The County as created was bounded on the north by Wyoming; east by Weld County; south by Boulder and Summit Counties; and west by the Snowy range or Continental Divide (including North Park).

Larimer County, as originally created, was ninety (90) miles long and fifty-one (51) miles wide at its widest part, the width varying according to the trend of the mountains on its western boundary, and contained approximately 4,300 square miles of territory, or 2,752,000 acres. In 1874 Grand County was carved out of Summit County and its northern boundary formed a part of the southern boundary of Larimer County. Even though the area known as North Park was not affected by this change, local officials assumed differently and, therefore, enumerated it as part of Grand County in the 1880 and 1885 censuses.

No further change was made in the Larimer County boundaries until the Seventeenth General Assembly of Colorado, in the winter of 1909, created Jackson county out of that portion known as North Park, reducing the overall size of Larimer County to approximately 2,800 square miles, or 1,792,000 acres.

At the time Larimer County was originally created, La Porte was named as the county seat. But at an election held in 1868, the county seat was moved to Fort Collins by a vote of the people of the County.
